Ogallala Natural Beef Opens for Business

With the increased desire for local natural foods, Steve Bull and his partner Scott Hanson are now providing high quality, natural beef to Ogallala and the surrounding area with cattle raised by their Ogallala Natural Beef Company.

The Ogallala Natural Beef Company grazes their herd on certified organic cover crops and pasture land of Dennis Demmel and Steve Bull. The meat is hormone and antibiotic-free and are delivered direct to consumer. For summer time grilling, Ogallala Natural Beef is selling its hamburger and steaks at the local farmers market on Saturday mornings. Customers will also be able to sign up for a monthly "Beef Box" containing steaks, hamburger and a roast for $99.00 per month.

The need for naturally raise beef is growing. Ogallala Natural Beef answers that need by providing it locally. By buying local, customers are receiving the freshest possible meat and are supporting their community. They are also protecting the environment by reducing transportation distances and encouraging more earth-friendly beef production.

Local food is about the future. Supporting local farms helps keep the farms in your community, ensuring that your family has access to nourishing, flavorful, fresh food.

Ogallala Natural Beef will be taking orders for the Beef Box beginning this fall.

Place your order including a side or quarter by calling Scott Hanson at 308-280-0508 or going online at <http://ogallalanaturalbeef.com/>
